

Sales Representative (Pilot Program) – Fall 2025

About RazeMath

RazeMath is an AI-powered platform designed to help college students succeed in STEM courses through personalized tutoring and interactive learning tools. Our goal is to modernize math education across universities by providing students with intelligent, on-demand academic support.

About the Role

We are seeking current or recently graduated students to serve as sales representatives for RazeMath. Your job will be to introduce RazeMath to instructors at California colleges, support pilot program adoption in classrooms, and help expand our presence on campuses. This is a part-time, remote/hybrid role focused on outreach and impact.

Compensation

Since we are an early-stage startup, we offer commission-based incentives that are well above market averages. If you choose to commit, this is a strong opportunity to earn high commissions while building valuable sales and outreach experience.

What You'll Do

- Contact math instructors and department staff at California colleges
- Share the value of RazeMath and help guide pilot adoption
- Attend an introductory onboarding session and receive sales tools
- Join biweekly check-ins with the RazeMath team
- Provide regular updates on progress and outreach

Ideal Candidate

- Current or recent STEM student
- Located near a California university or college
- Strong communicator and self-motivated
- Available at least 5 hours/week during Fall 2025

Next Steps

After submitting this form, we'll review your responses and reach out to schedule a brief interview. If there's a strong fit, we'll follow up with next steps and onboarding. While this role is for Fall 2025, we're happy to continue working with high-performing reps beyond the pilot phase.
